

THREE GENERATIONS of Washburn Law Alumni: PAUL, BILL, AND BRANDON BERKLEY

The swearing-in ceremony at the United States Supreme Court was very memorable for the Berkley family. When Bill Berkley, bba '72, and jd '75, heard about the opportunity, he decided it would make an excellent Christmas and anniversary gift for his parents, Paul, '56, and JoAnn Berkley. Bill, his father, Paul, and his son, Brandon, '03, are all graduates of Washburn University School of Law. So, Paul, JoAnn, Bill, Claudia, Brandon, and Mary Berkley traveled to Washington, D.C., for the ceremony.

"It proved to be one of the best experiences they have ever had and a very proud moment for our family," said Bill Berkley. "To have three generations of Washburn Law graduates be sworn in before the U.S. Supreme Court is an honor that few receive."

Bill Berkley, '75, of Downs, Kan., Brandon J. Berkley, '03, of Greenwood Village, Colo., and Paul D. Berkley, '56, of Downs, Kan., were three of the 29 Washburn University School of Law alumni to be admitted to the bar of the United States Supreme Court in a swearing-in ceremony on April 28, 2008. Pictured left to right are Bill, Claudia, Brandon, Mary, JoAnn, and Paul Berkley.
