

WASHBURN LAW RECOGNIZED AS A 'TOP LAW SCHOOL FOR GOVERNMENT JOBS,' 'BEST VALUE,' AND 'BEST LAW SCHOOL'

Washburn University School of Law is one of 20 out of all 200 law schools recognized by National Jurist as “Top Law Schools for Government Jobs.” The National Jurist looked at employment data, curricula, and standard of living to determine the top law schools.

“We are proud that National Jurist recognized Washburn Law’s excellent and well-deserved reputation for preparing students for government jobs,” said Dean Thomas J. Romig.

According to Editor In Chief Jack Crittenden, the magazine’s goal was to “identify the law schools that have a proven track record of producing graduates for the different segments of public service.” The complete list will be published in the January issue of National Jurist and the Winter issue of preLaw magazine.

Washburn Law was also named a “Best Value” by National Jurist’s sister publication preLaw magazine, in its Fall 2011 issue. preLaw recognized 60 law schools that offer an affordable education with promising job prospects and bar pass rates.

In addition, Washburn Law is one of the nation’s most outstanding law schools, according to The Princeton Review. The education services company features the school in the new 2012 edition of its book, The Best 167 Law Schools.

WASHBURN LAW ALUMNI VITAL TO RECRUITING HIGH-QUALITY STUDENT PROSPECTS

As a Washburn Law graduate, you are a valuable resource when it comes to recruiting the best and brightest law school candidates. You understand the value of a Washburn Law education and our commitment to academic excellence, innovation, and diversity.

To complement our 2012 recruiting efforts, we are offering application fee waivers to promising law school candidates referred by Washburn Law alumni. Last year when we offered this fee waiver, alumni responded with names of many prospective law students.

GAY-STRAIGHT LEGAL ALLIANCE (GSLA) MAKES DONATION TO PFLAG

Washburn University School of Law’s Gay-Straight Legal Alliance (GSLA) donated $1,438.37 to the Lawrence/Topeka Parents, Families, and Friends of Lesbians and Gays (PFLAG) in memory of Jason Dockins during a program held at the law school on October 20, 2011. “Jason was a dear friend of mine and was very active with PFLAG of the Flint Hills,” said third year law student Katy Tompkins.

Funds donated to PFLAG were raised through a “Doughnut Fundraiser” in which Washburn Law professors purchased doughnuts by the dozen to give to their students during class. Twenty-seven professors and staff participated by either ordering doughnuts or making cash donations. In addition, GSLA members baked and sold cookies, brownies, and breads. A substantial donation was also received from the Topeka law firm of Palmer, Leatherman, White & Dalton.

In accepting the donation, PFLAG chapter president Sonja Feist said the funds may be used to contribute to a new college scholarship program for LGBT youth and indicated the scholarship may be named after Jason.

If you know of a prospective law student, please contact Karla Whitaker, director of admissions, by e-mail at karla.whitaker@washburn.edu or by phone at (800) 927-4529. Feel free to share her contact information with prospective students.

Thank you for your continued support and for helping Washburn Law in its efforts to recruit the highest quality students.
